Separation of code

Another important principle is to separate presentation, business logic and data processing. Code concerned with database interaction should be separated from presentation (UI) code and from business logic, to improve flexibility.

EIS components are designed for specific tasks and give basis of this separation:

- Controller and view components for presentation processing

- Session beans for business processing

- Entity beans for complex business data